STRENGTHS	Arm Strength, Ball Placement on Vertical Throws, Competitive Toughness, Pre-Snap Reads, Big Game Performer, Play Strength
WEAKNESSES	Athletic Ability, Extend Plays, Off-Script Decision-Making, Post-Snap Mental Processing & FBI
SCHEME FIT	A shot-gun offense that relies heavily on pre-snap reads involving short-to-intermediate timing patterns along with deep shot plays.
PROJECTION	A good back-up QB you can win with due to his big-game experience, solid accuracy, and very good arm strength. Will succeed in an offense that calls for short-to-intermediate throws from pre-snap reads with deep, vertical shot plays from max protection. Will struggle to work through full-field reads in drop-back passing, along with escaping pressure from the pocket and making off-script plays.
BACKGROUND	8th-year QB who has started 54 out of 64 career games played (includes playoffs), including starts in 4 out of 8 games in 2019 while suffering a broken collarbone, causing him to miss Weeks 2-10. 1st year under HC Doug Marrone and OC John DeFilippo West Coast scheme utilizing mostly 11 personnel with short, timing patterns from the shotgun. Played behind an adequate OL, with an adequate WR/TE group, and good RB's.
BODY TYPE / AA	A right-handed thrower who possesses very good height and weight, with elite arm length, and very good hand size. Demonstrates adequate AA through good balance with marginal speed, agility, COD, and acceleration.
POSITIVES IN PASS GAME
Good mental processing pre-snap with FBI to identify blitzing defenders, kill plays and check to more favorable looks, audible run-play direction, along with motion eligibles for more favorable matchups both run and pass. Post-snap displays good mental processing to recognize coverages and throw favorable RPO's. Displays solid mental processing on drop-back passing to work through his progressions on half-field reads, working high-to-low. From the shotgun and under center, displays good footwork with good feet, balance, & rhythm to the depth of his drop. Good decision-maker on 1/2 field reads along with quick game concepts vs. Man & Zone, where he makes accurate throws with good rhythm and timing to his primary read, both in & out-breaking routes. Compact throwing motion with a quick release [3/4 release angle]. Very good arm strength with an ability to make any throw on the field with his feet set. Very good touch on deep, vertical throws such as Fades, Posts, and Corner routes where he puts enough air under the ball for WR to run underneath and win. Versus Man Coverage and in the Red-Zone, shows very good touch and ball placement on back-shoulder fades. Good in the screen game by utilizing his quick release and very good touch with good footwork to create throwing lanes and deliver the ball under pressure from awkward throwing angles. Displays very good competitive toughness to stand tall in the pocket under pressure and deliver very good throws to targets running vertical routes. Very good competitor with a short memory and good poise to respond in the critical, late stages of the game (8 career comebacks, 10 game-winning drives).
NEGATIVES IN PASS GAME
Will struggle to work through his progressions with adequate post-snap mental processing and play speed. Has shown to struggle to complete check-down throws with adequate post-snap FBI to recognize defensive rotations or buzzing flat defenders. When throwing without set feet (either on the move or under pressure from the pocket), becomes an inefficient passer with adequate accuracy and solid arm strength.
NEGATIVES IN RUN GAME
Limited ability to escape pressure and extend plays in both directions (but especially to his left) due to adequate overall AA including marginal acceleration and COD.
