WORST	Size, Release when Jammed at the LOS, Long Speed, Run Blocking
-------	----------------------------------------------------------------

PROJECTION	Starting Slot WR that you can win with. He is most valuable in an offense that allows him to run Option routes due to his ability to read coverages and find holes in Zone coverage, and his quickness, suddenness, and short area burst to create separation on short and intermediate routes. Lacks the size, physicality, and strength in his route running to win against physical and long Press corners once they get their hands on him, and the long speed to beat coverage vertically.

SUMMARY

4th year WR who has started in 17 of 60 games including 10 of 16 in 2018. 3rd year in Todd Monken's system where he primarily lined up in the Slot, running short and intermediate routes. Adequate height and weight, with a lean build and short arms, displays good athletic ability due to a good combination of acceleration, quickness, agility and short area burst. Good release against Off coverage due to good acceleration and burst to get off the LOS and get to top speed in an instant, uses good quickness to avoid Press coverage and reroutes throughout stem. Very good separation quickness at the top of his routes, runs hard stems, good ability to read DB techniques and manipulate their hips into opening one direction and has the suddenness, short area burst, and quickness to make quick sharp cuts in any direction specifically on Dig, Out, Curl, and Comeback routes, very good using single and double moves to create separation from all DBs, and good mental processing when reading coverages and being able to beat Zone coverage by finding and hitting the holes and seams in coverage. The combination of very good separation quickness through athletic ability and ability to read coverages results in very good play speed in short and intermediate areas of the field. Displays good competitive toughness with the courage to continuously run routes into the middle of the field and in traffic even after taking a hit. Has good hands due to good concentration, ability to track the football, and displays a natural and fluid ability to catch the ball with his hands away from his body, demonstrates good competitive toughness, functional strength, and body control coming down with the ball even after taking a big hit from a defender, and has good ability to adjust to balls thrown out in front due to good burst and acceleration to get to the ball, and when balls are thrown low to the ground, solid at high pointing the ball due to good ability to track the ball, solid jumping ability, and solid timing of his jumps. Good yards after catch due to good acceleration and suddenness to quickly get upfield after the catch, uses good athletic ability to make defenders miss in the open field, good competitive toughness and solid functional strength with the ball in his hands will put his shoulder down and pick up extra yards physically. Displays good mental processing understanding yards needed for a first down on critical third downs, good ability to adjust body and position himself to pick up the first down, and is extremely reliable in these situations. Adequate release when facing good or better Press corners who have length and good Jam technique at the LOS, when they are able to get their hands on him he struggles to establish himself in his stem, due to adequate physicality in route running, adequate technique and use of hands, and adequate functional strength to beat a Jam and physical reroutes throughout stem. Struggles to create separation vertically on deep routes due to adequate long speed, will not be able to burn defenses deep down the field. Adequate run blocking ability due to adequate technique and adequate strength when blocking solid or better DBs and LBs. Overall, is a reliable and tough starting Slot WR that you can win with. He is most valuable in an offense that allows him to run Option routes due to his ability to read coverages and find holes in Zone coverage, and his quickness, suddenness, and short area burst to create separation on short and intermediate routes. Lacks the size, physicality, and strength in his route running to win against physical and long Press corners once they get their hands on him, and the long speed to beat coverage vertically.
