| PROJECTION | A starting slot corner you can win with. At his best playing zone or out of a trail technique where he can mirror, and cut off quarterback's targets with his overlap. His size and play strength are weaknesses, will struggle tackling and shedding blocks from bigger players and can be boxed out for receptions. |

| SCHEME FIT | Nickel corner in a zone heavy scheme where CB1 matches on WR1 and he's given help against physical mismatches to prevent him getting bullied at catch point. |

SUMMARY

4th year player who has started 30 of 47 career games, including 10 of 15 in 2018 (mention why on injury and personnel) (mention snap counts). 4th year under HC Jason Garrett and DC Rod Marinelli. First season under passing game coordinator Kris Richards as Primary responsibility was as a nickel cornerback, with most snaps in the slot. Played close to half of one game as a boundary corner. Scheme was a 4-3 defense that plays most downs out of single high MOFC shell mixed with 2 high split safety shell in passing situations. Defense played Zone and Man defense with a near 2 to 1 ratio. He has adequate height and weight. Has thin legs and a lean upper body, he's built taut with solid arm length. Shows good athletic ability with a good combination of balance, foot quickness, acceleration and very good hip fluidity. He shows good change of direction skills. Displays solid mental processing with ability to handle variety of duties. Displays good competitive toughness, displays the necessary short memory to survive in coverage. Playing the boundary, he effectively uses his body to squeeze similarly sized receivers to sideline if they release outside. Displays solid route recognition, reading QBs eyes in off zone and anticipating incoming conflicts. Displays good leverage maintenance, will shut out targets out of flat and hook zones. Displays good man coverage ability, very good in trail technique and will glue to opponent's hip in trail technique. Displays solid click and close ability, has the athletic ability to recover when beaten. Easy long speed. Does a good job reading assignment for the incoming pass when his back is to the ball. Displays solid ball skills. In limited opportunities he showed the ability to disrupt ball at catch point. Displays solid ability in run support, takes good angles and will leverage the ball to his help if he can't reach the ball carrier. A solid blitzing who hides his intentions pre-snap to catch the QB off-guard. Displays marginal strength and will have issues with bigger opponents in coverage, can be blocked with ease if caught without forward momentum. Displays marginal LOS skills, short arms gives him a small window for punch and lacks the strength to disrupt inside release. In Man coverage he's susceptible to double moves as they take advantage of his aggressiveness. Can be bullied by bigger receivers and boxed out from catches because of length and strength limitations. Adequate open field tackler, he allows leakage when he doesn't generate momentum into tackle because of play strength issues. In the NFL, he's a starting slot corner you can win with. At his best playing zone or out of a trail technique where he can mirror, and cut off quarterback's targets with his overlap. His size and play strength are weaknesses, will struggle tackling and shedding blocks from bigger players and can be boxed out for receptions.
