PROJECTION	A solid starting DC/NC that can win with while aligned over the slot where he uses his Athletic Ability and play speed to run with Wr's and play with good zone awareness. Although he is very good in run support, he will take bad angles on direct perimeter runs and will become an arm tackler when coming from across the field and won't be able to break down and tackle in the open field.

SCHEME FIT	A scheme that can use a good run support NC that plays solid Zone Coverage where he uses good mental processing to recognize route combinations and accentuate his short area burst.

SUMMARY

A 3 year pro that has started in 43 out of 45 games played in Joe Barry's secondary where he started the 2016 season at LC but aligned at both the L&R corner position and finished the season playing the nickel corner in the sub defense where he look more comfortable and made a quicker impact on the run game. He processes solid height, weight and arm length for his position demonstrating good athletic ability using quickness, acceleration and short area burst. He plays with good play speed, using the proper leverage while in his backpedal to transition and run with Wr staying in good phase on vertical and crossing routes showing his competitive toughness in the process with the willingness to compete every down and by displaying confidence to come back and challenge the Wr after giving up a TD. He shows solid mental processing and uses solid leverage in Zone Coverage, understanding where his help is and ability to read route progression allows him to use his short area burst to break on the Wr using solid play strength to make the tackle on the ball carrier. Solid LOS skills, he uses good patience with his footwork to mirror the Wr's and shows solid play strength to use his hand and disrupt the timing of the Wr before transitioning with good hip fluidity to open and run with the Wr using good play speed. Plays with solid Press Man Coverage skills, using good footwork and athleticism to stay in position with Wr's using solid play strength to disrupt the timing of the Wr before opening his hips and running with them allowing minimum separation on vertical routes. Presents the ability to play solid Off Man Coverage using good leverage in his backpedal and good transition out of it to run with Wr's and will show good plant and drive on crossing routes to stay in good phase. Processes solid ball skills, he has the ability to track the ball after a deflection and get an INT with the ability to dislodge the ball from the Wr if it is away from his body. A very good run support player, showing good mental processing to recognize the run with the willingness and toughness to insert himself into the run game taking the proper angles on inside runs plays and will use good leverage while in pursuit on plays away where he uses good play strength to bring the ball carrier down. He will struggle to locate the ball and time his hands properly using adequate body control and allowing the Wr to catch the ball when in good position. Struggles with his balance, when he plays at the LOS using high posture in his stance and will raise up and lose a step when trying to open his hips and run with the WR, while he transitions out of his backpedal to run with the Wr he doesn't anticipate out/ come back routes showing adequate knee bend and ability to drop his weight which allows to much separation. He displays adequate open field tackling ability by taking improper angles to the ball carrier on direct perimeter runs and although he is a solid tackler when he is able to face them up he will miss tackles when coming from across the field by becoming an arm tackler. Overall a solid starting DC/NC that we can win with when aligned over the slot where he uses his Athletic Ability and play speed to run with Wr's and play with good zone awareness. Although he is very good in run support, he will take bad angles on direct perimeter runs and will become an arm tackler when coming from across the field and won't be able to break down and tackle in the open field.
