BEST

Ball Handling, Height/Weight, Accuracy/Touch Outside Numbers

WORST

Decision Making, Extend Plays, Poise

PROJECTION

Backup QB you can win with as a spot starter in a West Coast Offense that leverages very good ball-handling through PA concepts. Adequate decision maker who assumes the defense will not change its pre-snap look, a platform passer who has trouble with pressure in his face.

SCHEME FIT

West Coast Offense that heavily incorporates out-to-in progressions and playaction

SUMMARY

Eight year QB who has started 30 of 49 career games, started 5 games in place of an injured Ryan Tannehill and appeared in 7 overall. First year in HC Adam Gase's West Coast Offense where he was given lots of pre-snap responsibilities and asked to read the defense from out to in. Right-handed passer, tall, sturdy frame with elite height, very good weight and good hand size, displays adequate AA moving choppily in the pocket, heavy feet on the run, adequate agility/acceleration. Solid mental processing, vs. Base packages identifies DS location, required to communicate checks/adjustments with teammates before most snaps, makes Mike points to set protection and prepares himself to throw hot off a free runner. Recognizes when he has a hat for a hat on box count RPO. Very good ball handler, freezes 2nd level defenders with elaborate PA fakes from under center before coming up throwing deep Crossing route. Has improved at holding single-high DS with his eyes when throwing vertical routes. Decisive with his primary read to Slot coming off rub by X/Z, takes advantage of isolated WR running Hitch/Out/Comeback out of 3x1 look. Good accuracy outside the numbers vs. short-intermediate Zone coverages hitting the far shoulder, solid placement on short In cuts where he allows his receiver to shield DB with his body. Solid arm strength, generates leverage through high release point and very good arm length, short throws over MOF into tighter coverage display good zip. Shows good play strength, able to throw the ball away with defenders attempting to bring him down, can shrug off blitzing DB before stepping up in the pocket. Struggles identifying coverages against Nickel and Dime packages where DBs can disguise, late noticing timed blitzes from the secondary and Robber techniques, cannot locate Fire Zone blitzers after seeing DL drop out, loses track of backside LB in coverage after working the strong side. Displays adequate decision making, fails to confirm his pre-snap read causing him to throw ill-advised passes into coverages or completions for minimal gain/YAC. Throws with a long, looping motion allowing defender to break on the ball and make a play on intermediate routes vs. Man and throws beyond the numbers, consistently overthrows his target on Go route. Adequate when extending plays, bails out too quickly and always to his right, struggles to elude defenders closing on him, lacks the AA to break through an interior escape lane or challenge the perimeter, dives forward instead of sliding as a runner. Adequate competitive toughness and poise, does not handle pressure in his face well and cannot execute off-balance or moving throws, decision making does not improve in important situations, turns the ball over in plus territory attempting to push the ball downfield. Overall, a backup QB you can win with as a spot starter in a West Coast Offense that leverages very good ball-handling through PA concepts. Adequate decision maker who assumes the defense will not change its pre-snap look, a platform passer has trouble with pressure in his face.
