BEST	Athletic Ability, Mental Processing, Competitive Toughness, Adjust/Body Control
WORST	Release vs Press, Manual Dexterity
PROJECTION	Solid, starting WR who is best when aligned in the Slot or outside as a Z. Brings most value as a RZ target, with good combination of size, short-distance foot quicks, concentration and body control to convert in the short areas. Is also a good run blocker at the perimeter and 2nd-level. When aligned on the ball, will struggle to separate at LOS vs good press coverage.
SCHEME FIT	System where he can leverage short-area routes, especially in the red zone, without having to beat press.

SUMMARY

Third year pro, starting in 19 of 41 games, including 7 of 9 in '16. Aligned both on and off of the ball at inside and outside-lane WR in '16, his second season in OC Chudzinski's multiple scheme, placing heavy emphasis on the run to open up the PA Pass. Played with QB Luck in 4 of 5 games viewed; Luck was out with injury vs PIT and QB Tolzien started. Good build with good height, weight, with solid arm length and hand size. Good athletic ability with good foot quickness, balance and explosiveness. Solid Release with good foot speed to eat cushion vs Off/Zone coverage with good use of subtle movements in the stem to attack DB leverage & create space, good short-distance foot quicks to create slight space and run by tight man coverage when not dealing with a jam. Solid upper body strength and hand usage to fight through contact in the route stem and create space. Good processing to find & stay in Zone coverage openings on short-area routes, including good spatial awareness to stay in QBs line of vision on scramble drills. Good foot quicks and ankle flexion to create instant space on all out-breaking routes and short, in-breaking routes. Solid hip flexion to throttle down, drop weight and separate on square-ins and comebacks. Good hands to catch the ball in the strike zone with good concentration, toughness and grip strength to maintain possession in tight areas/vs impending contact; solid ability to track the ball on deep, outside-lane routes. Displays good body control when completing sideline catches and adjusting to high and low-thrown balls, especially in the RZ. Is good after the catch, with solid quicks to gather upfield, taking good angles and leveraging good speed to run by 2nd level with good stop-start CODs to juke arm tackles and poor pursuit angles. Gives good, consistent effort in run game, beating defenders to landmarks, walling off and driving feet through contact with good aggression, hand placement and strength to create lanes. Adequate hand-fighting skills to disengage from well-placed Jams at LOS (whether Man or Zone coverage), which disrupts timing, limits his ability to fight through pressure. Did not show ability to change how he released from the LOS on fade routes, consistently squeezing the red-line post-snap, allowing DB to get early break on the route, limit space and force the QB to go elsewhere in the progression. Adequate dexterity and body control to torque his core and snatch the ball outside of the strike zone on crossing routes. Adequate lower body strength to break tackles in space, will need to rely on athletic traits to gain YAC. Overall, solid, starting WR who is best when aligned inside or outside where he won't need to fight through press. Brings most value as a RZ target, with good combination of size, short-distance foot quicks, concentration and body control to convert in the short areas. Is also a good run blocker at the perimeter and 2nd-level. When aligned on the ball, will struggle to separate at LOS vs good press coverage.
