--------------	---

BEST	Attacking voids in Zone, Quickness to get upfield after the catch, Play strength after the catch, Short and Screen routes (Hitches, Slants, Quick Outs, Jail Break Screens)

WORST	Ability to stretch field vertically, Separation at top of Stem on Deep routes, Run blocking

PROJECTION	Starting Slot receiver that you can win with when utilized within a Quick and Intermediate passing game with routes that include hitches, 3-step Slants, Quick Outs and Crossing routes. He is also valuable as a Screen receiver who can pick up YAC. Will succeed against defensive schemes that run a lot of zone coverages.
------------	---

SCHEME FIT	Fits into a scheme that aligns him in the Slot alone and within Bunch and Stack formations in a Quick and Intermediate passing game, utilizing his mental processing ability to find vacant areas in Zone

SUMMARY

Fourth-year Slot receiver who has started 21 out of 47 career games, including 1 playoff game in 2015. Played in 15 regular-season games in 2017, including 6 starts. Played 66 percent of snaps in 2017, including 16 percent of Special Teams snaps. In 2017, played under Offensive Coordinator Matt Cavanaugh, who was formerly the Redskins quarterback coach, where he is utilized as a Slot receiver in primarily 10 and 11 personnel groupings aligning primarily in the Slot, but will occasionally line up as a Z or X, running primarily short and intermediate routes. Has played under the same Wide Receiver coach, Ike Hilliard, his entire career. Marginal height and adequate weight, compact body with short, powerful legs and marginal arm length, displays solid athletic ability with solid short area burst, COD, quickness, agility and balance. Solid release, vs. Off-Man coverage exhibits solid ability to quickly close cushion by DB using solid explosiveness and solid quickness out of stance. When being pressed at the LOS, demonstrates solid play strength when using a high-hand swipe against defender attempting to jam above the chest, solid quickness and COD to sell routes by getting DBs of solid ability to open hips and off-balance using a jab step with head and shoulder fake. Solid in Stem Phase, using good ability to process coverages by locating vacated areas within underneath zone coverage, ability to lower hips, bend knees, contributing to solid ability to separate on Short and Intermediate Routes. Demonstrates solid hands and ball tracking skills, consistently extending his arms and catching balls thrown within his catching radius. When thrown the ball in a stationary position on hitch routes and on intermediate crossing and corner routes consistently catches with arms and hands extended and secures ball, with solid body control and concentration. Exhibits good competitive toughness by showing ability to maintain ball security after absorbing hits from behind after securing catch. Exhibits good YAC due to his quickness, COD, ability to read blockers and Play Strength. On Smoke screens, demonstrates mental processing through patience in allowing blockers to set up, and processing leverage of blockers to maximize yardage. Utilizes good strength as shown by lowering his shoulders and body lean to gain 2-3 yards after contact against DBs and Safeties. Adequate ability to stretch the field vertically due to adequate long speed. When DBs with good foot speed open their hips and run, he struggles to create separation on Deep routes. Adequate ability to run block due to lack of upper body strength and adequate weight against DE, S and LB. Does not consistently utilize extended arms and wide base to sustain blocks. Overall, he is starting Slot receiver that you can win with and is a reliable receiver who understands how to process zone coverages. He is most valuable in a passing scheme that utilizes quick and intermediate passing game concepts to take advantage of his quickness and play strength to gain YAC. Lacks the long speed to be a viable threat on Deep routes.
