| PROJECTION | Starting QB you can win despite of that shows the arm strength, aggressiveness, and accuracy on all 3 Levels to push the ball downfield and can make all the throws. Lacks the discipline to check down or throw ball away, leading to high numbers of interceptions. Holds ball too long trying to make something out of nothing and shows a lack of ball security and awareness of edge rushers to protect ball. |

SUMMARY

11th year QB who has started 139 of 139 games, only starting 5 games in 2016 due to a right thumb injury as well as a torn labrum. 1st year in Dowell Loggains Spread offense, where he primarily operates out of the Gun with a Zone running scheme, and attacks on Intermediate to Deep levels with 3 & 5 Step drops. Right hand QB, with good height/weight, with solid hand size and frame, where he displays solid athletic ability with good burst, play speed & quickness on his 3/5/7 step drops with a very quick release to get rid of the ball. Displays good control and pre-snap mental processing at the LOS to check out of plays and identify blitzes and coverages. Shows very good accuracy on Short and Intermediate routes to both sides of the field, where he hits stationary receivers in the chest or allows his receivers to continue to run after the catch on Slant and Crossing routes, and displays elite arm strength along with very good ball placement on Intermediate Seam & Post routes to thread the needle and protect his receiver from oncoming Safeties. Displays good accuracy rolling out of the pocket, where he primarily rolls to his right and is able to put the ball in a spot to maximize YAC. Demonstrates good overall ability on Deep Go Routes outside the numbers, with good accuracy and ball placement to throw away from defender and give his bigger WR a chance to win 50/50 balls. Shows aggressiveness with the football throughout the game and does not waver despite his performance in the game. Demonstrates good competitive toughness and ability to extend play by stepping up in pocket to hit routes on Intermediate to Deep Levels. Displays good ability to extend the play outside of the pocket, due to solid footspeed to scramble with solid play strength to break the arm tackles of DE and LB's, with a good ability to throw accurately off platform, back leg throws 50 yards downfield with good accuracy. Shows marginal mental processing post-snap to throw with anticipation on Intermediate to Deep routes, where he holds ball too long before attempting to drive ball, instead of getting ball out early and utilizing touch and anticipation to throw receivers open. Demonstrates marginal decision making in all game situations, where he will ignore his progressions and reads to force the ball downfield on Intermediate and Deep routes, trusting his arm strength to beat defenders to the spot, taking unnecessary chances that lead to interceptions and the slowing of the offense. Shows marginal poise with pressure in his face, where he will abandon his footwork, backpedal and force ball into traffic instead of checking down or throwing ball away, with adequate accuracy to hit his receiver. Displays adequate ability to extend plays for positive yards within the pocket with pressure up the middle, where he drops his eyes when scrambling and holds ball to try to make a play out of nothing instead of checking down or throwing ball away. Shows adequate competitive and mental toughness, with poor body language that shows a lack of leadership, as well as continuing to make bad decisions with the football in crucial 3rd and end of game situations. Overall, a starting QB you can win despite of with that shows the arm strength, aggressiveness, and accuracy on all 3 Levels to push the ball downfield and can make all the throws at this level. Lacks the discipline to check down or throw ball away, leading to high numbers of interceptions. Holds ball too long trying to make something out of nothing and shows a lack of ball security and awareness of edge rushers to protect ball.
