SCHEME FIT	Best suited as an ILB in both 4-3 & 3-4 fronts with a system that works to keep him clean from the offensive lineman.
PROJECTION	Solid starter that you can win with due to his pass coverage skills, mental processing, lateral agility, and open-field tackling. Will be limited to align over the "the bubble" as he struggles to disengage blocks. Adequate tackler in traffic as he lacks the play strength to fight through contact while wrapping up. Will struggle to generate pressure on interior blitzes. Has missed 21 games due to injury throughout his career.
BACKGROUND	7th-year LB who has started 62 out of 86 career games played, including starts in 16 out of 16 games in 2019 while suffering no significant injuries. 1st year under HC's Jay Gruden (Weeks 1-5) & Bill Callahan (Weeks 6-17) along with DC Greg Manusky's 3-4 scheme where he played as a 3-down ILB, aligning both strong & weak ILB on run downs and MLB in sub-packages. Has missed 21 games due to injury throughout his career.
BODY TYPE / AA	Good height with very good weight, along with very good arm length and hand size on a sturdy, muscular, athletic build. Possesses very good athletic ability through very good quickness, lateral agility, and balance, with good hip fluidity and COD.
POSITIVES IN PASS GAME
Very good Zone Awareness, showing very good ability to read run/pass, drop into coverage with good pedal & hip fluidity, while displaying very good FBI with good COD to adjust to crossing patterns and pass routes off to teammates. Has shown to be good in short-to-intermediate zone coverage, while solid in deep zone coverage (Tampa 2). Good in Man coverage, featuring good trail technique and FBI to anticipate routes and cover solid TE/WR and good RB. Good ball skills both back to the ball & facing the ball, utilizing very good foot speed with good COD to close on the receiver, with very good FBI and good competitive toughness to disrupt the ball at the catch point. Good against screens with very good processing to read the path of the OL and either beat the blockers to the tackle or leverage to the ball-carrier to his help with very good AA. Solid blitz ability with good timing and burst to penetrate windows in pass protection and affect the QB with good finish. Plays with good effort and competitive toughness to pursue the ball-carrier at full-speed with very good play speed and good aggressiveness, throughout all stages of the game, regardless of score. Good performer in critical situations defending the pass with an ability to mirror TE/RB with good foot speed.
POSITIVES IN RUN GAME
Very good pre-snap mental processing, as he is the leader of the defense, adjusting as the offense adjusts, both with signals and moving teammates into correct spots. Demonstrates good eye discipline by focusing & reading his keys, diagnosing the play run or pass, while not being fooled by misdirection, PA, or screens. Solid vs. Run, featuring very good processing to diagnose the block of the OL and leverage his gap using very good lateral agility and balance. Good tackler in space with an ability to wrap-up, drive, & bring down ball-carriers with good size in his gap, utilizing his good competitive toughness, effort, and aggressiveness. Good vs. Outside Run, where he reads his keys and diagnoses the play quickly, maintains his outside shoulder vs. good OL moving with very good lateral agility and good pad level to influence the ball-carrier's running lane with good gap integrity. Shows very good range featuring very good lateral agility with good foot speed and good pursuit angles.
NEGATIVES IN PASS GAME
Will struggle to generate pressure on blitzes with poor play strength and a lack of rush moves to defeat solid OL or good RB's.
NEGATIVES IN RUN GAME
At the POA, displays adequate play strength along with marginal UOH to "shock & shed" blockers with solid size. Adequate tackler in his gap as he lacks the play strength to fight through contact while wrapping up. Has shown to have possible endurance issues by being substituted after long drives and/or after offensive turnovers.
