BEST	Lateral Agility & Explosiveness, Patience/Tempo with Gap Runs, Strength/Balance/Toughness/Competes to create YAC, Mental Processing as Receiver, Hands in Short Areas
WORST	Long Speed, Timing of Strike in Pass Pro, Ball Security when Fighting for Extra Yards
PROJECTION	Starting caliber RB who will likely end up in a rotational role due to durability concerns, that can wear down & punish defenders at the POA in Gap or Zone schemes. Would excel in a Power/Counter heavy scheme where he can use very good balance, strength, and toughness to create YAC as a runner and receiver in short areas, as well as short yardage. Lacks the burst and long speed to outrun quick LB or DB downfield pursuit angles and hit the home run, and is too aggressive at the POA to block highly athletic, smart defenders.
SCHEME FIT	Gap/Power heavy run scheme and limited to a check down option out of 5/6-man Pass protections.
SUMMARY
3rd year RB who has yet to start an NFL contest in 19 career games, playing in 6 contests in 2018 after suffering a patella strain. 3rd season under HC John Harbaugh, OC Marty Mornhinweg, and RB coach Thomas Hammock where he often ran Power, Counter, and Zone Run concepts from Dot (Pistol) and Offset alignments, as well as occasionally being used as a Check-and-Release & Slip Screen receiving option. Solid height and weight with good arm length and large thighs, a bubble butt, slight pudge in his midsection, and good upper body mass. Displays good AA highlighted by very good lateral agility/explosiveness and contact balance, and solid acceleration & long speed. Displays good vision, showing good mental processing with the tempo & patience to let his blocks develop on Power and Counter schemes; gets LBs to flow on Split or 1/Z with his eyes up toward the play side prior to cutting back. Burst is solid with solid acceleration on Power/Counter concepts as well as Zone runs to meet LBs at the LOS with solid pad level and uses very good explosive lateral agility to Jump Cut and make athletic LBs miss in the hole with good ability to create. Solid in passing game; shows good mental processing to sit down in Zone voids, using good hands with routes such as a Stab, Shoot, or Swing to secure passes that are on-target or slightly out in front, and can torque back on the run for passes behind him due to solid adjust in limited opportunities. Very good finish/YAC ability due to very good play strength, contact balance, physical toughness, and competitiveness as a ball carrier; runs through arm tackles, steadily fires his feet to consistently fall forward for extra yards vs. LBs, swats aside or powers low through DBs downfield, and displays good mental toughness as effective short yardage option on 3rd/4th down. Solid pass blocker; scans and finds target with good mental processing, shows good pad level and inside-out relation to create optimal leverage, using very good lateral agility to mirror LBs before striking the chest with quick outer hand/forearm to anchor with solid competitiveness and strength as a blocker. In limited opportunities, did not show ability to cradle in low, inaccurate passes. Solid acceleration and long speed prevents him from outrunning fast secondary pursuit to hit the home run. Displays adequate ball security due to his tendency to always fight for extra yards while holding the ball to his chest with one arm. In Pass pro, attacks too early vs. athletic DBs and with Cut blocks vs. quick DEs, opening the gate for quick counter moves to get by him. In the NFL, A starting caliber RB who will likely end up in a rotational role due to durability concerns, that can wear down & punish defenders at the POA in Gap or Zone schemes. Would excel in a Power/Counter heavy scheme where he can hit defined holes due to his patience, using very good balance, strength, and toughness to create YAC as a runner and receiver in short areas, as well as short yardage. Lacks the burst and long speed to outrun quick LB and DB downfield pursuit angles and hit the home run, and is too aggressive at the POA to block highly athletic, smart defenders.
