SUMMARY

An 8 year pro that has started in 83 out of 111 games played made the transition to Safety full time this season after playing Corner his entire career. He will be shown in Defensive Coordinator Dean Pees' defense mainly as the single high Safety and also has been seen in Quarters, and as a half-field safety in a Cover 2 scheme. Was an elite corner until an ACL injury in 2012 that hampered his lateral quickness ever since, made the transition to full time safety this past season. He has adequate height with a lean frame, with solid athleticism where he presents the acceleration, explosiveness, balance, and overall speed to play the single high safety position. Good play speed on horizontal routes and displays solid foot speed Trail technique on vertical routes staying in the receiver's hip pocket. Displays good competitive toughness and physicality in pass defense, with the mental toughness to comeback after giving up a big play in critical situations, does a good job communicating with his teammates verbally & non-verbally. Good mental processing to read the QB and understand route progression when positioned as a high safety, while leveraging routes coming into his Zone understanding where his help is coming from. Solid play strength when taking on similar sized receivers or when he has momentum working downhill against a stationary blocker. Mirrors TEs / RBs with good lateral quickness / agility. Not manipulated by TEs stem, maintaining good position and phase, with the athletic ability to react to Double Moves. Solid Ball skills to disrupt the catch with the ability to get his hands inside the WR's hands to prevent the catch. Tracks the ball well and positions himself to high point it. Uses physicality playing the ball through the man, uses off hand to rake the ball out. Has the AA required for good range and quickly accelerates and moves well once he identifies where to go in deep Zone coverage. Solid in run support, solid K+D ability to recognize run after the snap and attacking the play downhill. Presents good open field tackling, taking the proper angles while using good play speed to attack to ball carrier coming to solid balance and striking the ball carrier with good aggression, lacks form diving at the legs but usually brings the ball carrier down, shows good competitive toughness to take them to the ground. Displays tightness in his hips, has poor COD in tight spaces and lacks elite explosiveness in transitioning from backpedal to pursuit, lacks good lateral quickness when shifting from side to side. Displays a lack of play strength and physicality to shed blocks vs TEs and big WRs, losing contain and not making a play on the ball carrier, lacks play strength when tackling not driving through the ball carrier usually diving at the legs. Adequate in Man coverage, lacks solid LOS skills to be effective in Press against quicker receivers, including slow hands and adequate foot quickness that lead to inefficient movement at snap and instant battle to stay in phase with the receiver downfield. Lacks the hands to finish & make interceptions. Lacks UOH due to his adequate height and short arms in press & Off the LOS when sparingly used as a press nickel corner or box safety. Rarely wraps up and drives through when making a tackle, despite usually bringing the ball carrier down in open space, makes a lot of "shoestring" tackles. A solid starting safety that can help you win with good range over the top and good mental processing ability. Struggles when close to the LOS & in man coverage against longer WR's due to his adequate height & has a difficult time shedding blocks from bigger WR/ TE's.
