BEST	Patient and Quick Feet, Ability to mirror and change direction in compact spaces which allow him to have success in Press Coverage/Off-Man/and Zone
-------------	---

WORST	Long Injury History; Inconsistent in availability and performance due to injuries; Takes plays off struggles tackling in open field and around the box.
--------------	---

PROJECTION	A good starting CB when healthy that you can win with. Good in Press Man/ Off-Man/Zone coverage due to his quick feet, AA, and fluid hips. Does have limitations in the run game filling gaps and tackling ball carriers around the box and in space.
-------------------	---

SCHEME FIT	Any scheme that allows him to play Press Man/Off-Man coverage. Also can play Zone coverage using the slide shuffle technique with his butt cocked to the sideline. Plays with his back to the ball well and able to locate and track the flight of the ball.

SUMMARY

7th year veteran CB that has played in 62 games having started in 58 of those games. After his 2012 rookie season, he has been plagued by injuries leaving him unavailable and inactive for multiple games. Has long frame equipped with long arms and very good athletic ability that is ideally what you want at CB...Good LOS skills, which allow him to confidently line up against WRs in Press Man, Off-Man or Zone. In Press Man he does a good job of getting a well-placed firm off hand jab on WRs, allowing him to control and be in phase at every stride and disrupts timing and the QBs ability to target the WR. In Man and Off Man scheme his good AA, quickness, agility, and fluid hips allow him to effectively mirror WRs in compact spaces, change direction and be able to turn and run with Elite WRs. In a Trail Man technique he has good range and awareness that allow him to play with his back to the football, locate the ball and make a play. In a Zone scheme he displays a comfort level and ability to play a "shuffle slide/scootch" technique playing with his butt cocked to the sideline. This technique allows him to take a post-snap 3-step read to diagnose the play and quickly react with his good mental processing ability and be in good position to make a play vs quick game and drop back passing game. He is marginal in key situations in coverage due to the multiple pass interference penalties during those situations (has a total of 35 career penalties). In run support he is marginal against bigger, stronger and more physical WR/TEs. He has marginal play strength in shedding and defeating blocks and tackling ball carriers in space and around the box. Overall, Claiborne is a good CB when healthy that you can win with. Can play good Man, Off-Man, and Zone coverage that can protect the secondary against the pass and explosive pass plays.
