WORST	Pursuit angles on Outside Runs, Tackling in Space, Ball Skills
-------	--

PROJECTION	A starting Inside Linebacker you can win with that is capable of playing the bubble. Uses his ability to elude blockers at POA to get to the ball carrier and is able to handle both Man and Zone coverage in pass defense due to mental processing and athletic ability. Struggles against the outside run, taking poor pursuit angles and missing tackles when in space.

SUMMARY

3rd year LB who has started 42 of 47 career games including starting 14 of 15 games played in 2015, his first season in Richard Smith's 4-3 base defense where he was used primarily as a MLB seeing some time at OLB and remained on the field in sub packages. Missed week 15 with an injury to his left knee which required it to be drained and played through it week 16 and 17. Good height and solid weight with short arms and solid hand size and possesses good athletic ability, quickness, agility, and balance as well as solid explosiveness. Uses good mental processing to quickly read his run/pass key and diagnose the run or a RB screen passes and get in front of the blocks being set up by the OL to reach the RB as the ball is getting to them to make plays. Does a solid job at the POA, uses low leverage and solid play strength to hold his ground against adequate sized OL and lead FBs and using his hands to stack and shed the blocker vs Base Runs and then set himself and drive through to make a clean tackle on an Inside Run. When playing uncovered, utilizes a good, quick lateral move to avoid an attempted Reach block by an OL and not allow himself to get sealed off and put himself in a position to make a tackle. Solid in Zone coverage, drops while maintaining a good angular body position and reads the QB's eyes while also reading routes in his area of responsibility working from the deeper to shorter routes and is able to quickly react to passes using good COD, quickness, and solid explosiveness to break back towards the receiver and limit YAC. Good in Man coverage, uses good quickness to run with all TEs and RBs, will get his hands on solid sized TEs in the middle of the field within 5 yards of the LOS to slow up their routes and allow him to maintain closeness through the stem of their routes using quick route recognition and good quickness to reach and cover RBs in the flat or on wheel routes on the outside and will physically body them up on angle routes in the middle of the field to maintain closeness. Good competitive toughness, playing with an aggressive nature as he is always around the ball at the end of a play, is not afraid to step up against anyone physically, especially when in the red zone or backed up against the goal line. Adequate ability to shed OL when met at the POA and will get pushed back despite playing with good, low leverage due to lack of play strength. Adequate versus the Outside Run, adequate ability to take proper pursuit angles as he tries to use his quickness to run under blocks and will take himself out of plays, adequate ability to resink his hips and tries to tackle high when in space and is easily shrugged off by solid sized RBs or is easily evaded by a quick elusive move. In Zone coverage, adequate ability to play with leverage against receivers and try to funnel them into coverage by other defenders and will bite on play action fakes getting himself out of position in Zone coverage. Marginal ball skills, when breaking back to the receiver, will only play the man and does not attempt to get his hands on the ball to try and disrupt the receiver and does not attempt to strip the ball while tackling or if another teammate has slowed up the ball carrier. Overall, a starting Inside Linebacker you can win with that is capable of playing the bubble. Uses his ability to elude blockers at POA to get to the ball carrier and is able to handle both Man and Zone coverage in pass defense due to mental processing and athletic ability. Struggles against the outside run, taking poor pursuit angles and missing tackles when in space.
