BEST
Mental Processing, YAC, Separation Quickness, Competitive Toughness, Physical Toughness, Concentration, Hands, Courage
WORST
Foot Speed, Release vs Press, Play Strength
PROJECTION
Starting Slot receiver that you can win with, ideally as the 3rd/4th option in a West Coast Offense. Is best when used on quick hitting Choice routes, and in the Red Zone, where he can maximize his elite mental processing, very good separation quickness, and good explosiveness. Works well on passes over the middle where he can use his very good separation quickness, patience, and very good field vision to help set up blocks and maximize YAC. Very good receiver on scramble drills due to his elite mental processing and good explosiveness. Adds value as a Punt Returner due to very good YAC ability, great field vision, and good agility. Marginal foot speed, short arms, and adequate play strength limit him to the slot as he is unable to beat press, and cannot to maintain separation versus solid foot speed or faster defenders on longer developing routes.
SCHEME FIT
Any system that heavily uses Option routes and can give him quick hitting routes at the short level that maximize YAC opportunities.
SUMMARY
7th year player who has started 77 of 107 career games, including 14 of 15 in 2017, suffered a chest injury in 2017 that cost him a total of 1 game (week 3). 7th year in Mike McCarthy's West Coast scheme, primarily played as the Slot receiver, running a variety of option routes, attacking the seam from the slot, and primarily working off-script, finding voids in the defense with Quarterback Aaron Rodgers. He has a stocky frame with adequate and weight, and a short stride. Marginal arm length and solid hand size impact his catch radius. Displays solid overall AA, due to good COD, and good explosiveness out of his breaks, especially during scramble drills. Displays solid acceleration off of the LOS, quickly getting into his stem Vs Off Man and Zone coverage. Displays very good separation quickness on Slants, Curls, Option routes and Whip routes. Very good route runner who does not waste any movement when breaking into his stem. Displays elite mental processing, as he quickly is able to diagnose coverage and attack defenders on Option routes, and consistently is able to sit down or bend his routes to exploit holes in zone coverage on Seam routes and intermediate Crossing routes. Due to his elite mental processing he is able to read and react to both Man and Zone coverages during scramble drills, consistently uncovering late in plays. Due to his very good separation quickness, good explosiveness, very good chemistry with his QB and elite mental processing, he is at his best working in the Red Zone, as he is able to manipulate defenders, create immediate separation, and anticipate timing throws both over the middle and on the sidelines. Very Good competitiveness, courage, mental toughness and physical toughness is shown when working over the middle, having absolutely no fear of taking a hit and making plays in traffic, shown versus the Arizona Cardinals in the 2015 Divisional Round where he punctured his lung on a diving catch attempt. Displays good ball tracking on passes up the seam and solid ball tracking on Wheel routes. Displays good body control, as he is able to consistently get both feet in bounds when working on the sidelines. Displays a solid ability to catch passes outside of his frame. Displays good hands, as he is able to catch with his hands more often than not, and can stab the ball out of the air on back-shoulder throws. Displays good concentration as he is able to snag the ball in traffic, and quickly tuck it away before a defender arrives. Displays very good YAC ability, due to good physical toughness, good quickness and great field vision. Due to his compact frame, is hard to bring down on first contact, and is able to power through arm tackles. Great field vision and good quickness allow him to quickly turn upfield, and allow blocks to set up so he can maximize yardage. Displays good competitive toughness and solid play strength when run blocking, as he always shows maximum effort on run plays. Due to very good field vision, good quickness, and good concentration, adds value as a very good Punt Returner. Displays marginal foot speed, hindering his ability to beat Man coverage on Wheel routes, Deep Crossing routes, and Double Moves. Due to short arms, displays marginal ability to release vs Press coverage, as he is often out-leveraged by corners. Adequate play strength results in him getting re-routed on Wheel routes by corners with solid or better play strength. Marginal foot speed can also hinder otherwise very good YAC ability, as he is unable to outrun Defensive Backs with solid or better foot speed, and Linebackers with good or better foot speed in the open field. Overall, he is a declining, projected starting Slot receiver that you can win with, ideally as the 3rd/4th option in a West Coast Offense. Is best when used on quick hitting Choice routes, and in the Red Zone, where he can maximize his elite mental processing, very good separation quickness, and good explosiveness. Works well on passes over the middle where he can use his very good separation quickness, patience, and very good field vision to help set up blocks and maximize YAC. Very good receiver on scramble drills due to his elite mental processing and good explosiveness. Adds value as a Punt Returner due to very good YAC ability, great field vision, and good agility. Marginal foot speed, short arms, and adequate play strength limit him to the slot as he is unable to beat press, and cannot to maintain separation versus solid foot speed or faster defenders on longer developing routes.
