BEST	AA, Burst, Explosion, Balance, Play Speed
WORST	Patience, Pass Blocking, Pad Level
PROJECTION	Good RB as a role player that can be a solid starter if given the opportunity. AA, play speed and explosion benefit his ability to be a playmaker once in the second and third level. Would benefit from a run-and-shoot offense.
SCHEME FIT	A system that incorporates IZ/OZ schemes and pistol formations. Would benefit from a run-and-shoot offense that would use him in short yardage situations as a receiver

SUMMARY

Started 6 out of 40 games in his three-year NFL career. Drafted 73rd overall in 2015 by the Atlanta Falcons. Played for HC Dan Quinn all three years, along with OC Kyle Shanahan in 2015 and 2016, while playing under OC Steve Sarkisian in 2017 in Shotgun/Pistol system operating RPOs. Used primarily as a role player on 41.1% of offensive snaps in Zone/ Power/ Gap run schemes. Solid height and weight with defined muscular frame with length favoring lower body. Very good AA, initial quickness, long speed, explosiveness, and good agility. Solid mental processing on Gap and IZ runs, identifies cut-back lanes, reads offensive alignment pre-snap to be able to mirror his footwork with his OL. Displays good suddenness to make good cut-backs or bounce to the outside when Gap assignments break down. Good COD in the 1st and 2nd level with solid use of good body fakes and head gestures to hinder defender's chances of wrap up tackles. Solid play strength, lowers shoulders, leverages speed and acceleration to use momentum and ground generated power to engage contact, keeping feet moving through contact, displaying good competitive toughness to gain yards after contact showing solid ability as a finisher. Good ball security showing improvement from 2015 with 3 fumbles to just 1 in 2016 and 2017. Solid as a receiver in the flat and on short routes such as drags, slants and swing routes. Displays adequate pad level, exposing chest and upper body to big hits due to an upright running style in open space. Adequate patience in the first level, initial quickness to the hole is premature to the development of gap assignments on IZ and pistol runs. Adequate creativity to maneuver and navigate through traffic, in the second level. Adequate vision, relies on quickness and AA too often instead of keeping his head up and eyes scanning to route the best lane, not allowing OL to setup the second level. In pass protection, is a willing blocker, loses leverage due to lack of knee bend and play strength. Gets overpowered by DL moving laterally with sustained edge and interior momentum and power. Overall is a very good role RB with the capability of being a solid starter given the opportunity. Excels in a Zone/Gap/Power scheme. Has the AA and body control to be most effective on IZ/OZ runs and as a reliable receiver in short yardage situations.
